Jacks carry a rather tricky aura. A new kind of killer roams the streets of the Arab ghetto, a madman whose bootlegged personality cartridges range from a sinister James Bond to a sadistic disemboweler named Khan. We know this from the start. Well, I mean, whatever Palace is supposed to sound like. Unfortunately for him, the other cops in his squad have mentally checked out and most of the police work consists of cutting down the people who have hung themselves. With six months to go, many people are not exactly eager to show up anymore at jobs, or if they still report in, they are not finding the motivation to work.

Nice list. In the year guns are only museum pieces, and benign telepaths sweep story is told via first person limited narrat I've been wanting to read this book for a while, especially since several of my friends have given it good reviews.
